"ADONIS" DIXEY'S SON.

He Proves to be a Chip of the Old Block.
"Adonis" Dixey has a son 10 years old, who lives with his grandmother at Boston and is a rather precocious and enterprising youth. While making up for Henry Irving at Albaugh's the other evening a letter was received by the popular comedian, in which a recent escapee of his hopeful friend was recounted. There had been a light fall of snow, and with the enterprise characteristic of a down-Easter, Master Dixey determined to earn a few pennies. He went to his grandmother and requested a loan of thirty cents, stating as he did so that he wanted no questions asked, for he intended to return the money in a few hours. Nothing more was thought of the matter until a member of the family while walking down the street saw the pride of the Dixey household with a wooden snow-shovel soliciting jobs for cleaning off sidewalks. Upon being remonstrated with, he replied that his father would not be ashamed of him, for he was a workingman himself. "A chip of the old block," chuckled "Adonis," as he arranged his Irving nose, "and he will make his mark some day. By the way, this season will be my last appearance as Adonis, as I am making arrangements to present a new play. And that is not a walnut, either."

Wedding in Hebrew High Life.
A wedding in Hebrew high life occurred at National Rifles' Hall yesterday evening, the parties to the matrimonial contract being Miss Hattie Schmidt and Mr. Lewis A. Kann. Miss Schmidt is a well-known young lady of this city, popular in the upper circles of Jewish society. Mr. Kann is a rising young dry goods merchant of Baltimore, prominent in business circles. Nearly 300 persons were assembled in the Rifles' Hall last night when the happy young couple were married with Jewish rites by Rabbi Stern. There were no bridesmaids. The ushers were Isadore, Gus and Jacob Kann, brothers of the groom; Joseph Rothschild, Moses S. Kahn and Jacob Rosenbaum, all of Baltimore, and S. C. Grunbaum, Jacob Strasburger, Abe Strasburger and Morris Hahn of this city. After the ceremony the floor was cleared and dancing was kept up until a late hour. Mr. Kann and his bride left to-day for an extended Northern tour.

Not Policemen's Business.
Charlie Wescott and several other youths had their faces washed bright and clean and wore their best clothes to come into the Police Court this morning, where Special Officer Morgan had Charlie charged with obstructing the sidewalk. Mr. Morgan declared that Charlie said a bad word, and Charlie took the stand and declared that he didn't. All he said was "damn," and he only said that once. The officer had intended to a controversy with the boys because one of them had called him by name and another looked at him. The judge dismissed the case, reminding the officer that it wasn't his business to get into personal quarrels. This was trouble which rarely occurs in connection with the regular law, and which ought at all times to be avoided.

Clarkson's Beginning.
Washington, March 18.—Congressman Dorsey of Nebraska walked into the office of First Assistant Postmaster-General Clarkson bright and early Monday morning and laid down a bundle of papers.

"What is that?" asked the First Assistant Postmaster-General in a suspicious tone.

"A list of fourth-class postmasters I wish you would have appointed right away," replied the Congressman, with a fine sample of Nebraska confidence.

Colonel Clarkson looked at the papers and then at the Congressman's bland countenance.

"Dorsey," said he, "did the Democrats you want turned out succeeded Republicans who were removed for their politics?"

"Oh, Lord!" replied the Congressman. "I can't tell you anything about that. All I know is, the ones to be removed now are Democrats, and there are good Republicans to take their places. I've got 718 of them altogether. Here are twenty-eight, and I'll have a hundred ready for you in a week."

Colonel Clarkson studied the bundle of papers for a few moments, picked it up and "hefted" it as he deliberated. Then he laid the bundle down and said seriously:

"I suppose I may as well begin."

"Is that the first batch?" asked the Congressman.

"The first," replied the F. A. P. M. G., ironically.

"They go?" asked the Congressman, cheerfully.

"They go," said Colonel Clarkson, solemnly, with the air of building a man of letters upon the job of cutting off 50,000 of officials' heads.—[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]

Best for the Boys.

That we have expended our best buying thoughts on the Boys is conclusively proven in the present stock of Clothing. From the Kilts for the little takers to the youths of 14, in fact everything below long Pants. In styles from the plainest to the noblest. In patterns from the neatest to the most bizarre. Cheviots, Cassimeres, Worsteds, Wide-Wales and some new weaves, made up in Kilts, Norfolk, Plaited, Fauntleroy, etc. The success which has attended this department has induced us to enlarge its scope somewhat, and we hardly believe that a customer really wanting to buy can get away without making a satisfactory selection. One thing is sure—the qualities are of the best, the workmanship is thorough and the prices are the lowest for which equal qualities can be bought, be it in this city or any other.

We have a few "Novelties" in Kilt and Norfolk patterns not to be found elsewhere, and all patterns have been selected with a view of pleasing ladies of refined tastes who like to see their boys decorously dressed.

Splendid values in one and two-piece Kilt Suits at $2.50.

These Kilt Suits, made of plain, Norfolk and plaited styles, of Cassimeres, Cheviots, Tweeds, etc., stylishly cut and thoroughly finished, sizes 4 to 14 years, $1 to $1.50.

1 lot of All-wool Cheviot Suits, in a neat black and gray check, sizes 10 to 15 years, only $4. A bargain.

Boys' "Lord Chumley" Spring Overcoats, in neat and dandy plaids, with cape. Latest yet for the boys. Sizes 4 to 14 years.

Reefers in spring-weight materials. Navy blue cloth with brass buttons. Also brown cheviot double-breasted Reefers, in all sizes from 4 to 14 years.

Indestructible School Suits for the "rough-and-tumble" boy.

Boys' Stylish Cutaway Suits, in three pieces, in the noblest effects imaginable. Also a lot of Plain Blue Fine Cutaway Suits for wear on special occasions.

Separate Pants in a large variety of patterns, 75c to $1.

SHIRT WAISTS.

The "Mother's Friend" readily takes front rank in the world of Shirt Waists.
